July 2013

Sadly our parishes have experienced more than the seasonal amount of funerals lately - a great loss to us all, especially with the local knowledge many have taken with them. However, we have baptisms and weddings too, and give thanks for all.

“A WEALTH OF WISDOM”

It was a long cold winter
and in the morning when the pheasants had been whistled up and fed he would come in for a hot drink and warm himself by the fire.
A gentle happy time.
He reminisced - relating things of days gone by
a different world,
another time.
The days when he was young and all about the war - his time abroad;
things seen, things done
and people he had known.
Memories that should have been recorded
So special - but now gone.
And every day my daughter came and climbed upon his knee
her small blond head resting on rough tweed.
His life a volume full of memories,
a wealth of wisdom, and ‘passed on’ country lore.
Hers was an unmarked book
the pages waiting to be filled.
They had so little in common
an age apart
but she reached out and touched his heart and he in turn touched hers.
“My granddad” she would softly say and pat his arm - and smile.
